seid wein NEWS OF THE DAY.

_Rev. Father Ryan, the popular "poet priest," as he is sometimes called, of the South, has started on a pligrimage to the Holy Land. -The ex-Prince Imperial, son of the nephew of his uncle, it is now said, will enter the Boyal Military Academy of England on the 15th inst.

-A firm of French banks are to pay the sixteen million francs for the monopoly and manufacture and sale of matches.

—Madame Lucca's husband, Baron Von

Rahden, will shortly join her in New York, having obtained leave of absence from the army. What about that divorce? Was it a humbug?

—Election day is now a legal holiday in New York, and whether the banks there keep open or not, on Tuesday all bills and notes falling due on that day are by law transferred to Monday, and must be protested on Monday afternoon if not duly met. -Germany claims that she will soon be independent of America as regards petroleum.

The crude material has been recently discov ered in Galicia in great abundance, and extensive preparations are making to fit it for The Home Journal of New York says From a reliable source we learn that Lieutent Fred. D. Grant, son of President Grant, will be married early during the coming year to Miss Wright, daughter of the late General

Wright, of the United States army." The exodus of emigrants from Hamburg is of such enormous proportions as to cause s erious uneasiness and atarm to the German Government. Farm servants, artisans, tradesmen and other classes flock to Hamburg by thousands daily, anxiously awaiting the sailing of the steamers for Baltimore and New York.

—A committee are making arrangements to engage the Academy of Music, in New York, for a series of five lectures, to be delivered by the eloquent Dominican Monk, Father Burke, in answer to the lectures of the English historian, James Antony Froude, on the history of Ireland. Thus we shall hear the other side.

-A commercial traveller in a Western city handed a merchant, upon whom he had called, a portrait of his betrothed, instead of his business, card, saying that he represented that establishment. The merchant examined it carefully, remarked that it was a fine establishment, and returned it to the astonished and blushing traveller, with a hope that he would soon be admitted into partnership. and cheap house gas, one thousand feet of which will burn as long as two thousand feet of ordinary coal gas, has been su cessfully tested in London. The apparatus by which it is manufactured is so simple that consumers may, if they please, make their own gas. The gas is generated from gasogen, a liquid procured from distillation from mineral oils and mixed with a portion of dissolved resin, gum, or other hydro carbons. A St. Petersburg letter-writter says that, notwithstanding the assurances of a peaceful disposition accredited to Russia by the press of that country, there is a savor of war in the air. During the last eighteen months the export of precious metal from Russia has diminished nearly one-half, and the import has increased in proportion. In other words, Russia is laying up a reserve fund in the event of any sudden pressure. The correspondent in questien concludes in expressing the opinion that Russia fears a sudden attack upon herself.

-Mrs. General Gaines and her famous lawsuits are again commanding the attention of the people of New Orleans, this time with a prospect of a speedy termination of her long protracted battle in the ceurts. The indefatigable woman has proposed to the City Council to compromise her large claims on the city, based on judgments against the innocent holders who have purchased from the corporation property which the United States courts have decided belonging to Daniel Clark's heirs. The New Orleans Times says it looks very much as if Mrs. Gaines had the city in a, cor- the latter looked with complacency upon the ner on this point, and expresses a hope that a sonable compromise may be effected. -The German Aid Societies, organized for the relief of the sick and wounded during the late war, has just issued their final report. Certainly they have been generously supported, having, during the short period be tween Sedan and Paris, received and expend ed nearly fourteen millions of dollars-one million of which was contributed by America. These societies propose to use the sum-two hundred and seventy thousand dollars-now in their hands, as a permanent fund to preserve their formation and perfect all their arrangements, so as to form an organization always prepared to relieve suffering at any moment that war is commenced hereafter. We have no mode of comparing the expenditures of these German societies with the relief societies formed during our late civil war, lasting many years. But the exhibit of two millions and a half of receipts, as published by the "United States Christian Commission." is far behind the generous contributions that poured in during the Prussian war from all parts of Germany. Less than a year ago that errant Prince, the Grand Duke Alexis, was in this country adopting American customs and falling in love with American institutions, with an has recently drawn attention to the diffusion abandon that was quite delightful. Since then he has drifted with regal leisure around the tant has the pamphlet of Mr. Radcliffe been world, touching occasionally upon a communicable point; then dropping out of sight for a member of the Imperial Medical Society of season. equal, the tiger was given oplum and the buffalo arrack. This compensation arrangement was somewhat overdone. When the curtain rose the tiger tried to sneak away, but the intoxicated suffalo was eager for the fray. He charged his feline enemy and knocked her about fearfully, to which she made very little opposition. At last, by means of a rope and pulley, the tiger was raised by the neck and raily saddening; and when it is considered let fall upon the buffalo's back. This was worse than pulling corks from soda bottles with a cork-screw; some little clawing and shewing was done from this post of advantage, but the enraged beast soon shook off his burden and butted her to death. The subsequent fetes and banquets at the palace were more auspicious. His majesty drank the health of his royal guest in a truly cosmopolitan way, and the reply of Alexis was in the brief but sufficient phrases with which his entertainers in this country are familiar.

The News.

The returns transmitted to-night, by the special correspondents of THE NEWS, will indicate, with reasonable certainty, the result of the momentous election now begun. Only an unexpectedly close vote will cause serious delay. That the public may have access to the latest information at the earliest practicable moment, the office of THE NEWS will be kept open all night, and the telegrams, as they are received, will be posted in the counting room, where they may be seen by our friends and the public.

Vote for Greeley.

This is no time for heroics. A Greeley French government an annual payment of and Brown electoral ticket is before the people of South Carolina, and it is their duty to vote that ticket at the polls to-day. This they owe to themselves, no less than to the benevolent old man whose kindly heart is all aglow with sympathy with this sorely afflicted State. But if the Consertive citizens of South Carolina have not already resolved to show, by their action to-day, that they earnestly desire reunion, reconciliation and peace, no words of ours, at this eleventh hour, will give them the farsighteeness they need. We trust that the vote, contrary to every indication, will be since the war closed, and, as the South Carolina Liberals have no hope of victory, their snowy ballots will be a far-reaching testimony to the good faith with which they espoused the principles upon which the Liberal movement is based. This is worth the having. The probability or improbability of Mr. Greeley's election has no bearing upon the question. Greeley and Brown richly deserve the Conservative vote; they have been promised that vote; that vote must be given them, or we are guilty of bad faith and of acknowledging a general defeat before the battle is joined. Let every Conservative citizen, young and old, turn out promptly this morning and vote the Liberal

[From the Rock Hill Lantern.] We think it proper here to say a word of one of the newly elected officers of State, who, though in full communion with the Republican party, has so administered his office as Judge of the Metropolitan District, that we have every reason to believe, as Attorney-General, he will maintain his character for ability, for love of justice and the rights of all. Let him bring to the discharge of his new office the same conduct he has displayed as Judge; let him act without fear and without favor, knowing no party, favoring no man. In a word, let him bring to merited punishment the conspirators known as the Land Ring; the Bond Ring, the Railroad Ring -all public plunderers, beginning with his Excellency R. K. Scott-for no man is above the law; let him so act, and be sure, the pen which records the performance will emblazon the name of Melton with the highest ap-

A field for fame opens before him; but it is a field which can be won only by a decisive conduct and high moral courage. May he be equal to the occasion.

Bellicose Celestials.

There is a speck of war in Asia. Corea has long been a thorn in the side of Japan, and attack lately made on that island by a United States steamer. If an open rupture takes place between Japan and Corea, and leads to war, China has declared her intention of siding with the Coreans. China, in fact, has been arming rapidly within the last few years; has a large army and a respectable fleet. Feeling strong and secure, like nations we are accustomed to call more civilized, she naturally is spoiling for a fight, and this Corean matter gives her the opportunity. China has at present fifty thousand men provided with Enfield and Remington rifles, and thirty field batteries. Her navy consists of six men-of-war, besides numerous smaller vessels, and is constantly increasing. Her coast and river defences are all in excellent condition, and military roads have been constructed in various parts of the

Going, Going, Gone!

Mr. Colfax has retired again, this time posttively without reserve. He did it with tears in his eyes, in the presence of the sympathiz ing inhabitants of Grand Rapids, Mich. The contemplation of an untimely political demise like that of any other form of death, is natu that the Hon. Schuyler is about to die on compulsion, and not of his own free will, his polgnant grief may readily be excused. His state of mind in view of the approaching event is all that could be desired. For his ungrateful Radical associates he utters words of affection and forgiveness. For his Repub lican friends who have erred into the deviou by-ways of Liberalism, he has nothing bu heartfelt plty and an earnest desire that they may return to the fold. He is "not a candi-"date for any office;" and because he is not and could not be if he wished, he reprove the stern flat of the Grantite clique, which persists in reading wayward brethren out of the party, and is happy in the consciousness that he is perfectly safe in taking this mag nanimous course. And so, with his faded robes of state in one hand and a large-sized olive branch in the other, the Indiana states man casts his record into the lap of history and calmly prepares to descend from the proud eminence of the Senatorial throne into oblivion of his long-lost and loved South Bend

New Books.

STORIES BY MOTHER AND DAUGHTER. By Mrs. Caroline Gilman and Mrs. Caroline Jervey

Boston: Lee & Shepherd. 1872. To write books for children is an art by itself; and to write them well is a rare art Many books which pass as clever books for children are clever books, but not children's books at all, and the successful literature of childhood would suffer in bulk if the children themselves could be heard on the point. It is hardly too much to say that both Thackeray and Dickens falled in this kind of work. The former's "Bose and Ring," although in form a child's book, sparkles with satire that only the worldly-wise and cynical can appreciate. Dickens's "Pirate Colonel" is beyond the reach of even clever children, and we have always had the suspicion that "Alice in Wonder land" gives more pleasure in the drawingroom than in the nursery.

To write well for children, the writer mus have literary skill and also that knowledge o them which comes not only from acquaintance the heaviest which the whites have cast but from sympathy. It is as necessary for on who will engage their attention and amuse them, to gauge with accuracy their tastes and capacities as for the more ambitious writer to take the measure of grave audiences. And at the same time the writer for the young contends with a difficulty from which the naughtiness of the world absolves his coworkers, in that he is held to the strictes reckoning as to the moral quality of what he writes. Grown up people are, on the whole amiable in condoning offences of this kind, but the offence, to be pardonable, must be against themselves. And it is not perfectly easy to preserve the moral quality of even a child's book. "Sandford and Merton," famous in its day, is now charged with being priggish, and even good Mather sings a very improper epithalamium.

We have said so much to show that we think it no small matter that in the work, the title of which is at the head of this article. the authors have produced an excellent child's book. After a long rest from authorship Mrs. Gliman, whose reputation as a writer for both young and old is as wide as this country, has joined her daughter, Mrs. Jervey, who has already given proof of having come into her inheritance of the literary faculty, and they have together produced this book which we are sure every one will be glad of having the opportunity of placing in the hands of young people. It may with perfect justice be said to satisfy all the conditions of a good child's book. Consisting of both poems and prose tales, both the poetry and prose is clever, amusing, and within the grasp of children. A little instruction is attempted, out it is all sugared over: certainly no effort made to commit the treachery of ambushing a school book in the guise of a story book. About some of the pleces there is a local coloring which should add much to their interest in this place, the home of the authors. Indeed, there is much in it that should make it a favorite at the South generally, and nothing that should affect its popularity elsewhere. We recommend it warmly to our readers.

Give it not the deadly compound known as Give it not the deadly compound known as Soothing Syrnp. A certain popular article of this name has launched thousands of helpless innocents into an early grave. This has been proven repeatedly, and beyond the shadow of a doubt, for which reason it is cendemned by the majority of physicians.

Seeing the necessity for an article of this sort, entirely free from opiates, and other injurious drugs, Dr. Baer has putup the
